HARVARD UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB

The Harvard University Glee Club is a 60-voice, all-male choral ensemble founded in 1858.

It is the oldest collegiate chorus in the US.

The Glee Club frequently performs with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and at other concert halls around the world, including televised appearances at the Kennedy Center Honors and in Leonard Bernstein's popular series The Unanswered Question. A number of notable people were members of the Glee Club during their time at Harvard, including Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Harry Blackmun, Leonard Bernstein, and Virgil Thompson.
